VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

In 2009, 63.4 million Americans - or nearly 27 percent of U.S. citizens over the age of 16 - volunteered in their communities according to "Volunteering in America," a recent report by the Corporation for National & Community Service. Utahns won't be surprised to learn that our state ranked highest in terms of volunteering, with a rate of 44.2 percent.

Farmington City leaders gratefully recognize that local residents share this strong desire to give back to the community. But in order to act on their impulse to serve, people need information. In Farmington, opportunities to volunteer abound. Here are a just a few:

-  Festival Days Committee
-  Miss Farmington Pageant Committee
-  Arts Positions (including directors, producers, ushers, actors, musicians, and artists)
-  Coaches for Sports Teams

September's Town Hall Meeting on Wednesday, September 22, at City Hall will focus on volunteerism. Please come and contribute your ideas and energy!

Construction on the site resumed in June and now includes all underground utilities, the completed main entrance and roundabout, as well as preparation of the building pads and parking lots. With buildings coming out of the ground in September, along with paving of the parking areas and planting of landscaping, the project will be a beehive of activity preparing for next spring's opening.

Station Park will be the preeminent lifestyle shopping center in northern Utah. The project will ultimately consist of approximately one million square feet of retail, entertainment, restaurant, office and hotel space. Station Park will offer the finest tenant mix, as well as the finest amenities, architecture and ambience anywhere along the Wasatch front.

I will change my lawn mower to a 3-inch clipping height and try not to cut off more than one-third of the grass height when I mow. This will help create deeper healthy root systems that will be more tolerant of heat and will tolerate longer times between watering.

September temperatures cool and things begin to revive from the summer heat. I will water less frequently to keep my plants healthy and promote deep rooting. This will help my plants store energy for next year's growth.

FARMINGTON ARTS & EVENTS COORDINATOR

Whatever You Can Give...

"It all relies on the help of the community and the volunteers, on the good people who sacrifice some of their personal time to give back to their community."

~Sarah Hale

Behind the scenes...

It wasn't just the spirit of camaraderie or the excitement of the children or the almost tangible spirit of connection that Sarah Hale felt on July 5 as dusk settled onto the sycamores that border Main Park. Festival Days movie night - so simple - and yet it's the kind of thing that kindles Sarah's passion for community and for her job.

Sarah Hale is Farmington City's Arts Coordinator. She not only oversees Festival Days each summer, but also the community theater productions, art classes, and any other number of creative opportunities the city makes available to Farmington residents. Over and over, she's observed the good energy and strong bonds that form when residents pull together in support of something bigger than themselves.

To orchestrate that effort, to feel the unity that comes of it - well, for Sarah Hale, "it's almost addicting."

On a personal note...

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported in 2009 that 59% of women now work or are actively seeking employment. Of women with children ages 17 or younger, an even higher percentage (66%) work either full or part time.

When Sarah Hale joined the demographic of full time working mothers after having been primarily a stay-at-home mom, she had new terrain to navigate. "It's never easy," Sarah explains. "Your heart always wants to be with [your kids]."

Like 50% of other mothers with children under the age of five who worry that too many children are being raised in day-care centers according to Pew Research Center data, Sarah did not want to trade her children's opportunity to thrive for a job she loves. Perhaps not surprisingly, her solution has lain in the rich bonds she's formed with other people—in this case, her family.

"The most essential thing to me is that my family has been there. My girls have been able to spend time with their grandma. My sisters-in-law have taken turns."

While she doesn't deny the reality of trade-offs, Sarah believes the richness of family connections, her own increased appreciation for each moment she spends with her daughters, and the opportunity she

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Comcast at Wasatch, Inc.
Cable Television Franchise Agreement

Farmington City Council will hold a public hearing at 7:15 pm on September 21, 2010 to consider approval of a cable television franchise agreement with Comcast at Wasatch, Inc. The public hearing will be held at City Hall located at 160 South Main Street in Farmington. Public comment is encouraged and invited.

has to share the spirit of creativity and community with her children offset the fact that she is away for part of the day.

A part to play...

Both her personal and her professional life have taught Sarah that human communities, big and small, thrive when people are willing to sacrifice time and energy for the sake of the whole. As a result of that awareness, she feels deep gratitude for Farmington's many willing volunteers.

"I feel very lucky, very blessed to be around the people I am at work," Sarah explains.

Organizing arts projects in Farmington has shown Sarah the goodness and creative potential of everyone who signs up to volunteer as a stage manager or producer or even a concessionaire. Sometimes "people shy away because they think they have to have an extensive background, but that isn't true," she observes. One of the joys of her job is watching people discover their own capacity for creativity. Everyone has a part to play.

And so...

In the face of her intense passion and her commitments, Sarah Hale is stretched. But she wouldn't have it any other way.

"I love this. I couldn't ask for a better job."

Thanks to Sarah Hale for bringing the spirit of creativity and community alive in the city of Farmington. Her efforts make our corner of the world more meaningful!
