3. Why do you prefer the location you chose in question 2? (Optional)

Text Response
Central Location
center of farmington also near main park
Closer, feels like more in the heart of the community
Larger, more central
More land, easier access easier access, not affected by west corridor if chosen
I feel that it better meets the needs of the community as a whole. More centrally located, no potential of being torn down by Legacy option
This location feels more central, accessible, and near the existing development of Station Park.
to have a concentrated location with pedestrian access to the davis county park and proximity to shopping.
Closer to Farmington homes and stores.
It is a larger piece of land and can better accommodate the parking needed for such a facility.
Larger park area to accommodate gym
It seems like it would be less congested, and allow possibly for future growth and expansion?
Easy access given the proximity to station park
More centrally located, easier access, nice to have everything together/nearby.
I do not have a strong opinion one way or the other, but if the 1100 W site may be affected by West Davis Corridor, perhaps it's not best to build there.
I often head to the library and pool and having the gym right there would make everything close and convenient.
Probably easier to get to. You don't mention the cross streets... why not? Big mistake Lessen the traffic impact at the main park.
The 650 West park is more centrally located for all residents and is already in a commercial part of town
More central to get to i feel like the 1100 W location will add alot of traffic to our home route. i like the quiet street 1100 W is right now despite all of the shopping and amenities around us now.
Already commercial type developments there.
I think the Main Park at 650 west is larger and can handle the gym. It's also located in a more central located area in the city. I just think it would be better at 650 West
Closer location to my home
Because I think it is better to build a park that is more centrally located for the rest if the community and it would mean less traffic by my house
Central location will be more easily accessed by most residents.
close to everything
More room and centrally located. Next to Station Park.
It's more centrally located and closer to my neighborhood.
I actually don't prefer either location. I think the extracurricular activities should be paid for by the people who use them, not from a tax on all farmington residents/shoppers.
Its important that we keep traffic as far from residential as we can. I believe putting the gym on 650 will keep traffic closer to station park (better for business there) and farther from homes.
more central and bigger location
It seems fitting to have the main park next to the new charter school and closer to the main thoroughfair through Farmington. It's a more centralized location.
Because it's large enough to handle the needs of many sports, not just soccer, the city's "pet project" (sorry, that's how it seems).
It appears to be more central to the new growth in the city, placing it squarely in the vic of Station Park makes it convenient to my home.
It seems more central to the residents and main traffic arteries of the city; my kids could ride their bikes there; I also like that the land is larger
Closer to station park
Centrally located
Just makes more sense!
Rec center is not needed
close to station park
I think it will work well with then entire idea of the area.
I don't support either option at this time.
central location, closer to station park and transit, with so much acreage in one place it will be nice to have many facilities in one place
Farther away
More central to already established city buildings
Spreads out traffic and use
It's smaller and further away and probably not a park I would visit. I don't want to deal with traffic and massive crowds when I go to a park and if the gym was located at the bigger park, it would make it more crowded and less peaceful. If it's not going to be a rec. center with workout facility, pool, etc. then put it far away!
I like the centralized location and hoping the city can save money by utilizing the parking which will be built for the park.

Space and access

More central location. Easier to get to.

Closer to my home but also closer to station park. Family & friends attending sporting events might be more likely to stop at station park while in the area.

I want it anywhere where it will prevent putting in the West Davis Corridor.

I think it would be great to allow the school to use it.

Will push traffic to the park furthest from my house (though both are close enough for my regular use) and with the park being much larger it will accomodate the increased traffic and use.

Might keep traffic down on 1100 West.

Farmington City should have taken an opportunity to work in coordination with Ascent Academy to build a shared gym. I believe we should not miss another opportunity. The should be built, and the costs shared, with the new Elementary on 1100 West. It is not likely that the gym would be needed during school hours for city sponsored events. Since our tax dollars fund both the city and the schools, we (the community) benefit most from sharing resources.

I am building a home on 1100 W just north of Glover Land and I would really not like the gym in that area, as I chose to build there because of the quaint farm-like feel. Since the 50 acre park is closer to busy streets and a more central location anyway, I would prefer that location for the new busy gym.

Centrally located, easily accessed.

more centralized and with synergy from surrounding areas near county park and station park

Closer to my home and easier access

More Central to all of the city and easier access to all of the city. This location is right in the heart of the city where everything is centrally located. Easier for everyone to access. Also much closer to the parks and rec. office.

It would be nice to have more than another neighborhood park.

It is a more central and convient location

I feel like the new charter school and the 50 acre park will bring enough traffic to the area without adding another business/gym.

Closer to businesses, schools, and grocery stores

It is closer, would have better access, and would be guaranteed to remain.

Central location, consolidation of impacts, future utility

Spreads out the congestion on Clark Ln.

Central to the city and proximity to home address.

4. Why do you not prefer the alternate location in question 2? (Optional)

Text Response
Too far away
It is further from my house and many others in North Farmington
Feels too far away and inconvenient for regular usage
Smaller, not as central See above.
smaller location, and potential of being interrupted by west corridor construction
Not centrally located. Potential of Legacy going through that area.
It is important to avoid developing too much on Glover Lane to preserve the Farmington Bay area as much as possible.
Not as central, farther drive, unclear whether Legacy freeway would come through there.
It is a smaller piece of land,
Too much traffic congestion at 650 West location with the school and county facilities.
Too small an area
It is too far south for most Farmington residents
Further away, not close to anything.
I am not opposed to the 1100 W site - it just seems that it might not be good to build it there if it may be affected seriously by a West Davis Corridor if the Glover's Lane alternate was chosen.
Half the time Clark is under construction (apparently you all couldn't get it right the first time) and just a hassle to drive on.
Keep the facilities spaced apart in case there are events going on at the same time, crowd control/logistics
The increased traffic in residential neighborhoods along 1100 W and Glover Lane, the introduction of a commercial building out there, the possible interference of the WDC, it's not centrally located it is on the far SW part of town
Residential area
Not a good development choice for next to an elementary school in a very residential area.
It is on the outskirts of the city. It could be affected by the on going issue with the North Legacy Highway. Until the exact route is designated, it is not wise to put resources into a gym at the 1100 West location
It would be less traffic going by my street
You would have to be stupid to try and place a new park in the path of a potential freeway.
too far away
I don't want the gym to interfere with the preferred, Southern route for the West Davis Corridor.
All residents should not have to pay for extracurricular programs that only some residents use. Many Farmington residents and shoppers don't participate at all and shouldn't have to pay for the cost of this gym with a rap tax or a bond. Raise the prices of the activities to cover their own costs.
The more we spread business across the city the worse we are going to be in the long term.
smaller lot
It makes no sense to use the smaller land plot that is also less centrally located.
The Glover Lane option seems too politically charged as it may be near a possible WDC development area and likely be an expense to an area of the city that should remain rural.
I'm concerned about the South Davis Corridor; cars go really fast along Glover Lane, I don't know that I'd let me kids ride their bikes there considering the corridor and traffic on Glover
There is a road going through that location
poor location...interfere with WDC
Absolutely do not want increased traffic on rural 1100 West as well as a commercial feel in a residential area.
Rec center is not needed
too far south
I don't support either option at this time. I especially do not support any options adjacent to the proposed West Davis Corridor alignment. I feel that the WDC decision of record needs to be finalized before proceeding with this project.
Don't want to worry about Davis Corridor taking over park
I want parks to be enjoyable to visit and not crowded with traffic.
Doesn't make sense to build here until the new freeway route is finalized. The city could end up wasting a lot of money.
Too close to homes and extra traffic in that area.
Out of the way.
Farther away & not as convenient for those visiting to get to/from the freeway.
Same as other question - wherever it will prevent putting in the West Davis Corridor.
more room and parking
With the smaller site it will have the potential of creating congestion and limit the ability to have the fields needed for schools, sports, and play.
It's too late. Build together with new Elementary.
I like the quiet atmosphere around my new home on 1100 W just south of 500 S, and I would like to keep it that way.

Not centrally located. I do not drive that far West.

more remote.

more remote

Less accessible and further from development

Because the Neighborhood park at 1100 west is not a central location for all of the city. Not as easily accessed.

I want more of a city park than neighborhood park. A larger park would be used by more people. A neighborhood park is more likely to be used by the residents closest to the park.

Because I live on 650 West and am already experiencing too heavy traffic with just the charter school.

opposite of above

Not very central to the city and generally difficult to get to.
